THE ACTION REVERSED

Boston Collector Has a Reminder WASHINGTON, April 28. Assistant Secretary Spaulding has called the attention of the collector of customs at Boston to the recent decision of the United States Supreme Court in the case of Worthington, ex collector of customs, vs. Robbins, Appleton & Co., which reversed the action of the then collector in assessing a duty at 25 per cent ad valorem, as watch materials, on importations in 1884 of an article called "white hand enamel," and held that such merchandise was then duitable at only 20 per cent ad valorem.
The collector is therefore authorized to take the necessary steps for a settlement by the department of this and other cases covered by the same decision.

[From the Unbolsterer] A Short Study on Moths

The great mistake folks make is to await the heat of the Sommer before watch ing for months Artless young housewives look askance at the bare thought of bogs in their newly-built home, but if they stop to squarely consider the subjects, they must admit that visitors are at any time liable to bring in with their clothing a guileless moth, which, with good health and industry, can hatch hundreds of its Lind in a week, and ruin everything of an animal texture with which its larve or grabs come in contact, therefore, the need for serious watchfulness and a knowledge of the subject becomes apparent fabrics in my home has not been ruined dation has been good luck-nothing more The moth lays its eggs in dark places and the grub which s hatched moves slowly and its feeding spots are usually within a foot or so of a place of birth. If by good linck its place of birth is away from a textile fabric, the texture will not be hurt if near, it is sure idestruction."

In new fort? (1) gat that the Democratic fight over the Speakership of the incoming House of Representatives will not end for seven months: it must be admitted that the caveass has already become so hot as to augurill for Democratic harmony next winter. That a real contest, and no more precludingly shirmship, is in progress, those precludingly shirmship, is in progress. winter That a real contest, and no mere repetibilinary shrimish, is in progress, there can be no doubt, and that it will grow in bitteroess and indensity from this time for ward is promised by every indication. The strong disposition of the partisans of (risp and Mills to pull one another shair in public, is not stronger than their desires to itrourivent and defeat one another in prisate. Mr. (risp a friends are inspeciously indigrant at the attempt to impeach his loyality to free trade, and they inoid (of Mills) partisans responsible for the attempt.

This, partisans responsible for the attempt.

For a brief week they derived some comfort from reports, the spreading of which none of their tried to prevent, that Colonel Mills friends were trying to induce benation Reagan to resign his seat in the benate in order that the Governor of Texas might appoint their lavorize to the vacancy. If that was the Mills programme as frisp a friends will continue to assert, it has miserably failed. There is not much reason to believe that 6 older Mills would have accepted an appointment to the benate at this time. Friends who are in his coundenceded lare that has trangest ambition is to sit in the speaker's chair and dominate the House bea des he is a rather pugnations as well as conrageous man, and Brandward and the speakers chair and and Brandward and the speakers and a same and the speakers are the page of the second of this time 'richas who are in his count detice declare that he strongest ambidion is to sit in the "peaker's chair and dominate the House bee des he is a rather pugnation as well as courageous man, and has several acores with members of his own party which he would like to settle.

Whather Mills' friends are responsible for to root, Mr Crigo's partisans credit them with inspiring a certain story which is being circulated, not altogether privately, with intent to injure the Georgia candidate and which is to the effect that he has extered lato a "deal" with "senator Gorman of Maryland. There is much mystery in respect to the terms of this alleged 'deal' but one of them is asserted to be a pledge of understanding that the free-coinage movement is not-po a allowed to ripen into action in the House in time to injure Mr Cleveland a prospects for the Freadential namination in case Crisp is chosen Speakes. On the other hand, it is asserted that Hill is to be the beneficiary of the 'deal,' if he succeeds, and that it involves the subpression or postponement of extreme free trade legislation by the House until after the Democratic National Convention, if not until after the Presidential election.

There is no doubt that the silver question is giving the Democratic leaders more concern just now than anything clae, or that it will be likely to eat a considerable figure in the decision of the Speakership contest. There is not a candidate for the office who would dare to bandicap himself in that race by incurring the open opposition or secret bootility of Mr. Cleveland's friends; there is not a candidate for the office who would respect to bandicap himself in that race by incurring the open opposition or secret bootility of Mr. Cleveland's friends; there is not a candidate for the office who would not give a good deal to know the present attitude of Mr. Cleveland in regard to that question. Some of them believe that he has secuented to become a "trimmer," basing their believe apparently upon the personal secuency of the respe and sympathies, he did not serve in the Confederate Army. It is remembered that, when Mr. Carlisle was first a candidate for Speaker, the same consideration was urged with considerable effect in his behalf. It is just possible, however, that it may be urged too soon and too strongly in behalf of Mr McMillin. Indeed, some of his of Mr McMillin. Indeed, some of his Southern friends have already felt it expedient to explain that he was "too young to serve in the army. A friend of one of the other candidates who heard this explanation for the first time several days ago, exclaimed "McMillin was too young the several days ago, exclaimed "McMillin was too young the several days ago, exclaimed "McMillin was too young the several days ago, exclaimed "McMillin was too young the several days ago. planation for the first time several anysago, exclaimed McMillin was too young to tight for his couptry, was he? Well, let's see. Crisp was not too young for he enlisted in May, 1861, and was a licatenant in a Virginia regiment when he was captured in 1864, and carried to Fort Dela ware where he remained a prisoner until after the war ended. He was old enough to be a 4 unfederate solder during the entire war. He was born in September of the same year. Crisp is eight months older than McMillin, who was fore young to enlist as a soldier. I think the less Mr. McMillin's friends plead his youth the better it will be so far as his prospects for the Speakership are concerned. It seems probable from present tudal toos that unless the lealousies and difficulties of the two leading candidates can be soon allayed, neither of them will will
